Session 7 — Student Activity Worksheet

Practice Session 4 — Right Here Right Now

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Name | SHASHWAT KUMAR | Reg. No. | RA2511003011035 |
| Branch | CSE-CORE/Q1 | Date | 30th August 2026 |

Session Learning Outcomes

By the end of this session, you should be able to:

- Distinguish response from reaction in our interactions.
- Explain “you decide your feeling on your own right” versus “your remote control is with others.”
- Distinguish lack of intention from lack of competence.
- Identify the basis of deciding: preconditioning, sensation, or self-verification on natural acceptance.

How to Engage with this Worksheet

- Whatever is stated here (and in the lecture) is a proposal — do not assume it to be true or false.
- Verify it on your own right, on the basis of your natural acceptance, and validate it in your living.
- Treat each question as a dialogue: first between you and the material, and then within your own Self — between what you are and what you really want to be.

Part A — Key Ideas (Recap)

- The film ‘Right Here Right Now’ (directed by Anand Gandhi) is about human behaviour and its propagation. Even a single happy person has an impact on others; similarly an unhappy person has an impact on others.
- Response: you decide your feeling on your own right, on the basis of your natural acceptance and right understanding; the feeling is definite and unconditional. The other’s behaviour is only an indicator of the other’s state; with that input you decide your behaviour to ensure mutual happiness. You are self-organised and your conduct is definite.
- Reaction: you decide your feeling based on the behaviour of the other — on whether you like or dislike it. If the other behaves properly you may behave properly; if the other misbehaves you may also misbehave. Your ‘remote control’ is with others; you are enslaved and your conduct is indefinite.
- Intention is not the same as desire: intention = natural acceptance; desire is a part of competence. An event (e.g. a boy shouting back at his mother; a doctor not reaching on time) may be due to a lack of competence rather than a lack of intention.

- On what basis are people deciding — preconditioning, sensation, or self-verification based on their natural acceptance? Most desires are motivated by preconditioning or sensation, not by natural acceptance.

Part B — In-Class Activity

Activity 1 — Response or Reaction?

Mark each statement as belonging to Response or to Reaction.

| Statement | Response / Reaction |
|---|---|
| You decide your feeling on your own right | Response |
| You decide your feeling based on the behaviour of the other | Reaction |
| Your feeling is definite and unconditional | Response |
| If the other misbehaves, you also misbehave | Reaction |
| Your 'remote control' is with others | Reaction |
| You decide your own behaviour; you are self-organised | Response |

Activity 2 — Lack of Intention or Lack of Competence?

For each event, decide whether it shows a lack of intention or a lack of competence, and write one line of reasoning.

| Event | Intention / Competence | Reason |
|---|---|---|
| The boy shouts back at his mother | Competence | He lacks the emotional regulation (competence) to express his state calmly, though his core intention is not to cause harm. |
| The doctor did not reach Shruti on time (he stopped for an accident victim) | Competence | The doctor intended to fulfil his duty but prioritized another critical emergency on the way. |
| You came late to the workshop | Competence | The intention was to arrive on time, but external circumstances or poor time management hindered it. |
| Someone takes away your mobile | Competence | Driven by a misinformed assumption of fulfilment rather than an inherently malicious human intention. |

Part C — Long-Answer Questions

Answer in your own words, verifying each point on the basis of your natural acceptance.

Q1. Distinguish response from reaction. Why does the deck say that in response "you are self-organised" while in reaction "your remote control is with others"? [5]

A response is self-decided based on natural acceptance, while a reaction depends on external conduct. Reaction hands one's "remote control" to others because external actions dictate one's internal state, whereas response keeps conduct definite and self-organized.

---

Q2. Explain, using the events in the film, the difference between lack of intention and lack of competence. [5]

Intention is what one naturally wants to be (natural acceptance), whereas competence is the ability to carry it out. In the film, instances like arriving late or emotional outbursts stem from a lack of skill or external constraints (competence) rather than a fundamental desire to disrupt harmony (intention).

---

Q3. On what three bases do people decide, and which one leads to definite, self-organised conduct? [5]

People decide based on: (1) Preconditioning, (2) Sensation, and (3) Natural Acceptance. Only self-verification through Natural Acceptance leads to definite, self-organized conduct.

---

Q4. From your own interactions, estimate the percentage of time you are responding versus reacting, and state what effort is required to move from reaction to response. [5]

Self-evaluation indicates that roughly 70% of daily interactions are reactive, while 30% are conscious responses. Moving toward consistent responses requires self-observation and evaluating actions against natural acceptance rather than reacting automatically to external triggers.

---

Self-Reflection (Take-Home)

- What percentage of your decisions are motivated by preconditioning, by sensation, and by self-verification on natural acceptance? (Slide 11)
- What do you need to do so that all your decisions are motivated by your natural acceptance? (Slide 11)

---

Prepared strictly from the lecture/practice-session slides (PS4). UHV-II, Module 2 — Harmony in the Human Being.